Transformative power of the tango at WPI

WPI professor says dance enhances, broadens lives of students

Professor Hossein Hakim and Sope Otuyelu – a WPI grad who was introduced to tango dancing by Hakim – demonstrate some dance moves. (T&G Staff Photos/PAUL KAPTEYN)

Trading up

Mr. Hakim is also in the process of being licensed as a money manager and is in the finalizing formation of his company, Empowerment Capital LLC, to help others learn how to manage their money and perhaps be able to pursue their hidden talents.

Mr. Hakim found taking courses and studying investing intellectually gratifying. After working as a professor in Spokane, Wash., before coming to WPI, he rolled over $4,000 from his college retirement fund into an IRA. He used the money to trade stocks of emerging companies like EMC, from 1984 to 1999, when his earnings on the money totaled $1.7 million.

"I was lucky I got out at that time and cashed out 90 percent of that," he said, and was able to keep a good portion.

He now manages money for friends. Mr. Hakim also placed first in a trading contest last year, run by iFundTraders LLC, based in New York City. He grew $10,000 into $93K in a simulated account – an 830 percent rate of return in less than a month. He won $10,000, began investing that "real money," and has earned about $4,500 on it so far, he said.

But making money – or making money grow – was not the only goal, Mr. Hakim said. It was more a way to help others by sharing his knowledge and funding his own philanthropic goals, such as setting up charitable trusts.

$101,000 in one Month

Dr. Dan grosses over $101,000 in the month of August, while most traders and the rest of the world experienced a rough time. Our trading methodologies help create consistency in all markets, however in trending markets they produce the biggest gains quite naturally. Come join us. We need more traders. We completely fund our traders eliminating the need for them to risk their own funds.
